

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

Charles H. Latrobe.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 19.—Charles H. Latrobe, a noted civil engineer, died today. He was born in 1833, his father being Benjamin H. Latrobe, the first man to survey a railroad over the Alleghenies. He came of a family of engineers. His grandfather was architect of buildings at Washington, and rebuilt the Capitol after its destruction by the British. Charles Latrobe designed the splendid bridges spanning Jones Falls, in this city. For years he had charge of the public parks. He built a number of bridges in Peru, including the Agua de Verrigas Bridge, 575 feet long, over a chasm 263 feet deep. At the time it was said to be the highest bridge in the world. It was constructed in this country and shipped to Peru in sections. Of late he had been connected with the Norfolk and Western Railroad.

Mr. Latrobe was married three times. His widow was before her marriage to Mr. Latrobe Mrs. Isaac McKim. Mr. Latrobe had three children, one son, Gambel Latrobe, now in the Engineering Department of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and two daughters, both of whom are dead. One married the late Alexander McKim, and after his death married Dr. Hopkins of Philadelphia.

John Stebbins Lee.

CANTON, N. Y., Sept. 19.—John Stebbins Lee, D. D., LL. D., Professor of Church History, and the first President of St. Lawrence University, died this morning, aged eighty-two years. He was graduated from Amherst College in the class of 1845. He was the oldest educator in the Universalist denomination, having been connected with denominational schools and colleges for fifty-seven years. He was a large contributor to denominational papers, and the author of "Nature and Art in the Old World" and "Sacred Critics." A son, F. S. Lee, is Professor of Physiology in Columbia University; another son, the Rev. J. Clarence, an ex-President of St. Lawrence, is the pastor of the Church of the Restoration in Philadelphia, and a third, Leslie A., is Professor of Biology and Geology in Bowdoin College, Maine. The funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon.

Obituary Notes.

D. P. ERWIN, one of the wealthiest and most prominent men of Indianapolis, died there yesterday after a long illness, aged fifty-eight years. Among his possessions was the Denison Hotel.

DON ALONZO BECK, who, with his brother, Theodore S. Beck, was engaged in business in Hoboken as a silk manufacturer, died yesterday at his residence, 85 North Walnut Street, East Orange. He was forty-five years of age.

ABRAHAM BOYCE JONES, who was for thirty-three years chief engineer in the service of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, died on Thursday night at his home, 400 Tompkins Avenue, Brooklyn. He was born sixty-five years ago in Tarrytown, N. Y. Two daughters and one son survive him.

D. T. LANMAN ROBINSON of 12 East Thirty-fifth Street died yesterday from typhoid fever. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah P. Robinson, who have been identified with Narragansett for years. Mrs. Robinson was a Miss Lanman. Mr. Robinson was thirty-four years of age. He belonged to the Calumet Club.

WALTER H. LITTLEFIELD, a prominent real estate broker of Brooklyn, died on Thursday at his home, 88 Cooper Street, that borough. Mr. Littlefield was sixty-two years old and had long been in business on Myrtle Avenue. He was a member of Clinton Lodge, F. and A. M.; De Witt Clinton Lodge, K. of H.; the Eckford Club and other societies.